

AAT eNews & Views Newsletter

Hello there,

One would have to view my pictures to believe that I made it through the most thrilling and terrifying moments of my life this month. Hawaiian shark-cage-free swimming.

It was one of those times when I knew I would back out if I didn't take the plunge first, hoping that the 20 or so sharks crowding around the boat would not notice me. I can honestly say it was an incredible experience, and I'm grateful my 15-year-old son urged me to do it! The sharks in this area were not threatening, and we had to follow a specific strategy and technique to ensure they did not detect fear.

At some point in our lives, we will all feel fear. Fearing for my safety was understandable given the circumstances, but it becomes an issue when it prevents us from living the lives we want or need to live.
